PREFACE

Crawford County is located in central Georgia. It was created as the fifty-fith county by the state legislature in 1822. The county was formed from the northwest portion of Houston County which had previously been created from Creek Indian land in 1821 using the land lottery system. Crawford County in 1824 lost a large part of it's western portion when Upson County was formed. It later received small additions from Talbot and Macon counties. Since then the boundaries have remained mostly unchanged and to-day encompass an area of 313 square miles.

The county was named for William H. Crawford, a Georgian who was serving as U.S. Secretary of the Treasury in 1822. He was a jurist and a diplomat, and very nearly became President of the United States.

Knoxville, the county seat, was named for General Henry Knox of Revolutionary War fame. The courthouse that was first built there, burned in February 1830. The early marriage records somehow survived the fire. In the eary years, Knoxville was the hub of business and county activity. When the railroad was built within one mile of Knoxville, a station called Roberta was established which soon drew the business trade to that location. To-day Roberta is the largest county town.

Joanna Troutman is probably the most noted native of Crawford County. A monument to her stands on the courthouse square. She designed, made, and presented a flag to a group of middle Georgia volunteers en route to Texas to help fight for its independance from Mexico in 1833. With a reverse color change her "Lone Star Flag" was later adopted as the official state flag by the State of Texas.

Although the county lies, within commuting distance of large job markets in Macon and Warner Robins, it's industry remains primarly agriculture. It leads the state in the number of peach trees and to-geather with pecans, they account for 60% of all farm income.

The county population in 1830 was 5314 and rose to 8855 by 1850. The county lay along the Macon and Montgomery Trail of the Creek Indians and as this and other trails turned into roads, emigerants poured into the county. Many came from east Georgia counties and the Carolinas, but many also moved on to new counties and states to the west.

This publication contain my abstraction of two microfilm rolls of Inferior Court Minutes for County and Court Purposes covering the period 1830 through 1863. The two county books, which were micorfilmed, do not show a title on their cover page and pages were not numbered. The second book containing minutes from 1846 to 1863 was most difficult to abstract. It appeared that the Clerk of the Inferior Court, beginning in 1851, was in the habit of letting loose minutes accumulate before making entries into the book. It was not unusual to find minutes entered on a page bearing dates of three different years and as many as four years apart. Many entries were undated and it was difficult to determine if they followed the date of the previous entry. It was therefore with great difficulty that I did my best to place all entries in order.

Not only does this publication contain hundreds of names not previously found in Crawford County records, but it contain many items of historical significance. There are some maps of early roads, the smallpox epidemic, the coming of the telegraph and railroads, murders, embleZzlements, hangings, illegitimacies, paupers, gonorrhea, etc., which makes this publication an important addition to the estate records we have previously published.

We wish to express our graditude to the trustees of the R. J. TAYLOR, Jr., Foundation who awarded our Society a grant to assist in the various non-labor costs of compiling this publication and the printing costs. The Foundation also absorbed the expense for printing thirty additional copies which they will distribute to various libraries within the United States.

In obedience to an order from the Inferior Court directed to the leader signed as one of the Commissioners of Roads for the 797th Dist. First that part of the road which lies north of the Hopewell and Macon Market Road seems to have been entirely neglected by general consent, by all concerned for at least five or six years previous to the time of his being appointed a commissioner and of course could have been of but little consequence to the people as a public road yet there has always during this time been away open near this route of the Old Road laid out by order of the court. Second if the complaint be that the commissioners have not kept the road in question within its legitimate bounds the cause is this, that from the best information your commissioners have been able to get from the residents of the district and those who first opened the road it appears that the tract originally laid out could not at this time be made passible without first laying a bridge over Echaconnee Creek and therefore they could have gained nothing for the public by negating the more (illegible) about offered by the present holder of the land and the opinions of different persons equally acquainted with the history of the road and the accounts they give of its whereabouts in by gone days previous to its death and resurrection are contradictory. Further it is (illegible) impossible for your commissioners at this late day to arrive at any certainly or agreement as to the lands one tenement did possess in days of (illegible). And for this reason also the undersigned could see no impropriety in leaving the road where we found it. The ground left open and on which it runs at this time being much better than what is said to be its lawful place. But the whole of this portion of the road which is north of the main way leading from Hopewell to Macon is of so little public use that it ought to be abanded as a mere private way and the people relieved from the useless burdon of working on it. Third your commissioners do not concieve that they posess the power arbitrarily to form ground from the freeholders for the purpose of placing roads on better routes, this being generally done when necessary by special agents appointed and qualified for the task. Yet when it suits the convenience of a citizen in arrange his fields to very the roads a little and in doing so he gives a better road than the old, the undersigned can see no sin in the commissioners and the people receiving the same as a public road and working it as such. With regard to other parts of said road there are four places in which the old tract is entirely fenced into the farmers fields, but at all these places as well as the one complained of the way left open is quite as good, or better than the one which is obstructed some trees have fallen across the wayside consideration and have probable remained longer than is right but the overseers once notified of them and will remove them soon. /s/ J. Because during the time allowed for appeal he was confined in Macon at his regular business without a doubt as to the efficiency of the arrangement before set out; 4th. Because as defendant has been informed and believes his attorney was during the time allowed for entered appeal and immediately after the adjournment of the court called to Alabama on official business that before he left he had requested the clerk to enter the appeal in his name for defendant with the said THOMAS as security, that plaintiffs counsel objected to the sufficiency of the security wherefore the Clerk refused to enter the appeal that neither defendant or his attorney was informed such refusal until after the four days had expired, /s/ CULVERHOUSE & ANSLEY, Moveants Atty.
